

W.O. Mitchell Read-a-Thon Fundraiser Suggestion Sheet

Reading Ideas

Novels

Recipes

Homework

Graphic Novels

Magazines (there are lots of great magazines for kids)

Comic Books (Don't discount the power of comics to hook kids on reading. They are a great way to teach your children about the back and forth of dialog.)

Play Scripts

Atlases

Manuals (For kids who want to know how things work, manuals for things like cars, lawnmowers, and appliances can be great options -- and they build vocabulary, too)

Newspapers

Poetry

Travel Brochures

Encyclopedias

Sports Programs

Catalogs

Dictionaries (You might be hard pressed to convince your children to read a dictionary from cover to cover but give them a challenge like: "Find a new word that starts with 'r'" or "Find a word with 13 letters" and they will end up doing a lot of reading with a plain old dictionary.)

Road Signs

Books they write!
